Tropical architecture is a design that focuses and responds to the climatic and environmental conditions of the tropical region.

MAIN ENTRANCE

Tropical architecture is a design that focuses and responds to the climatic and environmental conditions of the tropical region.

A detailed architectural rendering of a modern tropical residence. The house features a white facade with large glass windows and a prominent wooden staircase on the exterior. A large, curved swimming pool with a stone border and a small waterfall is in the foreground. The pool is surrounded by lush tropical landscaping, including palm trees, yucca plants, and various flowers. In the background, an outdoor lounge area with a white sofa, a dining table, and a stone wall is visible. The overall atmosphere is bright and sunny, with a clear blue sky.

COMMON AREA

A modern bedroom interior featuring a large, tufted, light-colored headboard behind a bed with a white and grey striped duvet. The bed has a wooden frame and a black headboard. Two bedside tables with wooden tops and black frames hold various items, including a lamp and a plant. A large glass shower enclosure with a stone wall and a waterfall feature is visible on the left. The room has a high ceiling with recessed lighting and a large window with white blinds. A small round table with two glasses and a book is in the foreground.
